 2. The Manchurian Medical College [redacted] for instance, to all appearances still exists in Mukden; but almost all medical apparatus of the institution necessary for training purposes has already been transported to Peiping, where it is kept in a building of the National Peiping University. (The Manchurian Medical College 滿洲醫科大學, with several other Japanese colleges, was made a part of the National Northeastern University 國立東北大學 after it was taken over by the Chinese.)

 3. Entrance examinations for this year will be held soon in both Mukden and Peiping. Applicants have not yet been informed that classes will be held in Peiping in the fall. All expenses of travel, board, etc., will be paid by the government. Upper division students of the college will arrive in Peiping in the near future.
